Bioethics is concerned with questions about basic human values such as the rights to life and health, and the rights or wrongness of certain developments in healthcare institutions, life technology, medicine, the health professions and about society’s responsibility for the life and health of its members. Bioethics involves issues relating to the beginning and end of human life, all the way from issues relating to in-vitro fertilisation and abortion to euthanasia and palliative care. Bioethics has an impact on every level of human community from the local nursing home to the huge inter
