Pilgrimages to the eternal city were never unpopular in the Middle Ages, although pilgrims were particularly venerate the relics of martyrs for the faith, numerous in certain periods. These pilgrims to Rome pilgrims was mitigated by the journeys of became known as a center for penitential new converts to Christianity.